

Announcing a Medication Usage Evaluation Program Regarding Fuzeon®

Biojector® 2000

The Biojector® 2000 is a needle-free injection system that has been used to deliver millions of injections in a wide range of healthcare settings. The Biojector works by pressing liquid medication through a tiny orifice that is held against the skin. This creates a very fine, high-pressure stream of medication that rapidly disperses medication only into the subcutaneous layer of skin.

Some patients using Fuzeon®, or who have delayed the start of Fuzeon, may have physical or psychological barriers to using the standard needle/syringe combination.

BioScrip is undertaking a medication usage evaluation (MUE) to compare the standard needle/syringe combination to alternative injection devices. The objectives of this MUE include measuring changes in adherence, persistence, injection site reactions, and patient satisfaction with Fuzeon therapy. The alternative injection devices currently available include:

- Shorter/smaller gauge insulin syringes OR
- Needle-free injection system (Biojector® 2000)

A Patient Must Meet One of the Following Eligibility Requirements for Biojector® 2000:

- Patient has “needle fatigue” and/or needle-related reactions and has discontinued or is at risk of discontinuing therapy.
- Patient has physical difficulty manipulating the currently supplied needle/syringe.
- Patient has been unwilling to use Fuzeon delivered by standard needles/syringes.
- Patient is currently experiencing moderate to severe injection site reactions.
- Patient must be able to fill their Fuzeon prescriptions through one of our retail or mail order pharmacies and be trained on the injection device by one of our pharmacists.

What the Program will Provide:

- Biojector® 2000 device or shorter/smaller gauge insulin syringes.
- If needed, monthly refill of Biojector® syringes, vial adapters and CO<sub>2</sub> power cartridges.
- Initial training on the alternative injection device prescribed.
- Ongoing support and follow up to assist with patient adherence/persistence and assess experience with alternative delivery devices.
- A series of patient surveys to measure achievement of the program objectives.
